

ATLANTA HISTORY.

We have long needed an accurate history of the city's growth from a mere hamlet to metropolitan pretensions. Certainly an argument is needed to demonstrate the great utility, even the necessity, of such a work. It is also abundantly clear, alike to preserve the city's early history, and to make known to an attractive and popular form its present advantages.

There is hardly a city in the south that has not in its public library a record in which a man could go for information as to early history, climate, business and social advantages. Such a record of Atlanta in the form of a handy and well-organized volume should be in every public library, north and south. This volume should be handsomely illustrated, neatly and artistically bound, and should contain the names of representative men, and descriptions of points of interest, besides the story of the city's marvelous growth and the grounds of her future prosperity.

We are glad that such a work is being pushed to completion. Col. E. Y. Clarke is the author of the forthcoming book, and we need not state that he will make it once a parlor ornament, a valuable book of reference, and a manual manual with which to attract capital and population. Every citizen should promote the publication of the city's early history by subscribing for it.

A PIECE OF PICTURESQUE ROMANCE.

The house of the last legislature committed a miserable folly that we trust we shall not see repeated this year. The force of "pages" for the house was cut down from four to two. As a consequence this piece of picture certain numbers of the house had to club together and pay for two more pages out of their own pockets. It is simply impossible for two pages to attend to the house properly, and the members should see to it that they are not reduced to the necessity of paying out of their own private funds for attention that the state should pay for.

The Constitution favors interference at every possible point, as it will abundantly show during the session. It has no sympathy with trifling business like that in the action recorded above.

THE FLORIDA COMMITTEE.

The house committee, which has been investigating the Florida election business, has returned to Washington. Mr. Woodburn, one of the republican members of the committee, will, it is said, unite with the democratic members in a report to the effect that the Tilden and Hendricks electors were duly and lawfully elected. He is a republican member, but his pocket book stolen by a negro while in Florida, and he is said to be of the opinion that there are thieves in Florida. We infer from this that Dannel's soul is embittered, and it would not surprise us to hear that he has prepared a minority report setting forth that there has been no election at all in that state.

HON. E. H. HILL.

Mr. H. A. Harrison, of this city, received a dispatch yesterday from Hill stating that his public duties would not permit him to leave Washington at this time. As the committee from the disputed states are returning, and a debate may spring up at any time on the important issues now before congress, Mr. Hill prefers to debate his post. He will take part in the debate on the questions. We are also informed that letters have been written from some of Mr. Tilden's most intimate friends to gentlemen in the legislature, fully endorsing Mr. Hill's course on the presidential election.

HON. THOMAS M. NORWOOD.

Senator Norwood arrived in the city yesterday from Washington. He will probably remain until after the general election. He is in good health, and his friends are confident of his election. We have not had an opportunity of hearing his opinion on matters in Washington, but he is said to be of a favorable report.

One of our reporters, in alluding to the donations of wood for the poor of Atlanta, said that the Central railroad had been asked to contribute, but intimated that the authorities thereof would in all probability refuse. We happen to remember the case of the Central railroad in this connection. The Atlanta division of the Central road has contributed several car loads of wood to the distressed of our city, and the officers of the road deserve the thanks of the community for their liberality.

JIM BENNETT and Miss May are to continue dual, and Jim and Fred are to fight a duel. We advise Jim to follow the example of his father, who, in a duel with his son, was killed. It is much easier to edit a newspaper like the Herald than to have your gizzard perforated with a pistol ball.

The Indianapolis Journal remarks that "Gov. Colquitt, of Georgia, is a zealous Baptist, and preaches every Sunday to the negroes whom he employs." We quote this merely to show how the average radical newspaper of the west practices inaccuracy as a sort of mild poison to more serious lying.

The president, in his usual Sunday morning chat with Gough, says he doesn't admire the attitude of the western democrats. This is unfortunate. There is nothing now left for these traitors except to go to their homes as prescribed by law.

Some of the papers want cars made of steel to ensure the safety of the traveling. Wouldn't brass do as well? It would be a great deal cheaper. Blaine, and Chandler, and Morton could furnish enough of the raw material to erect seven hundred and sixteen sleeping coaches.

"Colonel" J. W. WHEELER, of the Philadelphia Press, says the country is saved. We trust so, but we wait until our Uncle Samuel is inaugurated, before committing ourselves on this important question.

There are more candidates for the various offices in the gift of the legislature than there are members. Let us have a candidate's convention some time next week, and invite the boys and girls.

SUPREME COURT
RECEIVED IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF GEORGIA, JANUARY 10, 1878.
In the case of James H. Warner, Plaintiff, vs. The State of Georgia, Defendant.
The court, after reading the report of the trial, rendered its decision in favor of the plaintiff, and ordered that the writ of habeas corpus be granted.

LESSONS OF THE STRIKE
In the first of information that the miners of Coal Creek have gone to work, the Knoxville papers of Sunday morning bring news that the strike is over. It is not necessary to say that the strike was a failure. The miners were not able to maintain their position. The lesson of the strike is that the miners must be organized and must have a strong union.

The second and more useful lesson presented by the strike is that the miners must be organized and must have a strong union. The strike was a failure because the miners were not organized. They were not able to maintain their position. The lesson of the strike is that the miners must be organized and must have a strong union.

THIS FALL IN GOLD.
At the close of last week gold was quoted at 104 1/2, the lowest price attained since 1862, with one exception. In the first week of November, after the great panic, there were recorded sales at 104 1/2. A year ago the price was between 112 and 113. The constant tendency downwards of late has put the price in the hands of the speculators, above which it does not promise to go. It would doubtless go several points lower were it not for the upsurge created by the schemes of the Chandler gang. Nothing else in the market would move gold, from coming together. Speculation in the gold market would absolutely be within our grasp, if there were no political uncertainties in the case.

It could not be prevented. We are expecting more produce and importing fewer dry goods; our mines are producing largely and the gold price is coming to us in two steady and strong streams from opposite directions from the Pacific coast and from overseas. The government added to the accumulation by paying out $26,000,000 to meet the January interest on its bonds. The result was that the bank statement in New York for the week showed a specie increase of over five millions, and the average of gold was three millions higher than the week's greenback average—an event that has not happened since the original issue of the latter in 1862. Give us a political rest, and the balance of trade would soon add, not only to the gold price, but to the gold market. The country has never before witnessed such a consummation of our brightest hopes.

DEMOCRATIC RULE IN FLORIDA.
No matter how the electoral vote of Florida, manipulated as it has been by means such as Chandler, McLean and Cowley, may be counted, by Mr. Ferry, a second time, the result will be the same—the people of that long-suffering and badly plundered state have gained a victory which, so far as their immediate and material interests are concerned, is quite as substantial and will prove well-nigh as fruitful of good results as would the inauguration of Mr. Ferry. They have not only elected their state legislature, but they have returned two democratic congressmen where they only had one before.

The legislature organized on the 21st inst., and Governor Drew was inaugurated on the same day. His address was characteristic of the man being bristled, pointed and business like. He stated that it was his intention to administer the government of Florida in the interest of the whole people and not in the interest of any party, and he assured the colored people that he would protect them in all the rights and privileges to which they are entitled under the law. A democratic governor is such an unusual thing in Florida that the negroes refused to believe that Mr. Drew was really coming in, and some of them even went so far as to predict that if he was in he would be summarily ejected.

Altogether, it was a glorious day in Florida. Carpet rule ended forever, and fraud, perjury, and swindling, will never more revel in high places. The colored people, who have been so long and so cruelly oppressed, have gained a victory which, so far as their immediate and material interests are concerned, is quite as substantial and will prove well-nigh as fruitful of good results as would the inauguration of Mr. Ferry. They have not only elected their state legislature, but they have returned two democratic congressmen where they only had one before.

Warner vs. The State. Larceny, from Onitash.
The defendant was indicted for the offense of "larceny from the vessel" under the 408th section of the Code, and upon his trial, the jury found him guilty. A motion was made for a new trial, but it was refused. The court rendered its decision in favor of the plaintiff, and ordered that the writ of habeas corpus be granted.

THE RECORD.
The record, that Bacon held a note for $1000, and that he was the owner of the same, was read. The court found that the note was valid, and that Bacon was the owner of the same. The court rendered its decision in favor of the plaintiff, and ordered that the writ of habeas corpus be granted.
